Our Inspiring Communities Fund has helped dozens of projects get off the ground in our neighbourhoods. We’ve funded summer gatherings, local history projects and food gardens, to name a few. One of our projects – Coding Club – is part of a wider initiative by the Inventors Club Whitechapel to get young people interested in learning computer languages and improving their interpersonal skills. Akik Miah runs their Monday night sessions:

“I grew up in Stepney, so for the last 25 years I’ve seen lots of gangs in the area and I ended up getting involved in all of that. But – I came out on top. I went to college and university and got a degree. Growing up, I used to rely on the youth centres. If it wasn’t for them, I would have been on the streets or in jail. As I got older, I thought: ‘I want to give something back’. I earn enough in my career to be happy, so I wanted to dedicate some of my time to the young people in the area. I know a bit of coding and we need to get young people in the borough involved.

“We want to teach them other skills too, like talking to a crowd with passion. Coding is just to get them through the door; it’s an avenue into computer gaming and apps. We want the parents to come as well so that they can see what it’s all about. Most parents don’t know what coding is – I tell them that their child is going to learn to talk to the computer in its own language. These workshops offer fun taster sessions for young people – come and try it!”

Residents are moving into brand new affordable homes in Watts Grove
A former depot for council refuse trucks in Bow Common has been transformed into a brand new development of affordable housing. In September, The Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan, popped in for tea with residents to celebrate.

Owned by Tower Hamlets Council and managed by THH, there are 148 properties. The homes include houses and much-needed larger homes with three and four bedrooms plus accessible homes for wheelchair users.

Half of the homes are let at usual council homes rents and the rest are let at Tower Hamlet’s Living Rents level. More than 300,000 people live in the borough and it’s one of the fastest growing in London, so there is huge demand for homes, particularly affordable ones.

Specially designed play spaces, a community garden and 100 cycle spaces for residents make the estate a safe and attractive place to live. Rooftop solar panels give the estate its own sustainable source of electric power.

Out with the old and in with the new. Mr and Mrs Murdoch are among the new residents, having lived for 38 years on the Boundary estate, some of the oldest social housing in London. Mrs Murdoch uses a wheelchair and her previous home was on two levels so she needed a more suitable home. Occupational therapists from THH worked with the family to make sure all their needs were met, including an accessible wet room bathroom.

The family are delighted with their new home. Mrs Murdoch said: “We are both very happy. This is perfect. It’s given me more independence and saves me having to call on my husband and family for help all the time.”

More work ahead. As the housing shortage continues, THH are working with Tower Hamlets Council to identify disused land on which to build more homes. In the past few months alone, planners have approved four more of our schemes, which will create 140 more new homes that will be managed by THH.

Remembering the history of the area
The four blocks have been named in recognition of the history of the land that they are built on.

Western House Up until World War2, Watts Grove was called Western Street.

Emmeline Court Honouring suffragettes Emmeline and daughter Sylvia Pankhurst. Sylvia moved to Bow in 1912 and campaigned for women’s rights and living conditions in the East End.

Santis House Named after a trading house that stood on the site until the early 20th century.

Tallow Court Reflecting a previous factory on the site until 1937. Tallow is a rather unpleasant product used to make candles and soap and most recently found on the new five pound note.

THH has a dedicated team working on fire safety, putting in place measures and works that will achieve fire safety compliance and keep residents safe. We’ve put lots of information and advice on our website and have been holding meetings with Tenants, and Residents, Associations.

Fire safety work has started in a number of areas. The work is underway at the blocks identified as having the highest priority for work, and residents in these blocks have received letters explaining what work is being done and have had a chance to attend drop-in sessions and meetings.

Some works, such as repairs and clearances of dumped, bulky and stored items, have been completed.

What happens next?

The Fire Risk Assessments identified areas that needed further investigation, and THH surveyors are carrying out inspections and drawing up plans for any necessary works.

We are developing a plan to ensure all fire safety works are completed as soon as possible, and this includes fire safety works being prioritised and delivered within the existing five-year Better Neighbourhoods works programme.

High rise blocks with enclosed single staircases are our next priority and will be completed once surveyors have drawn up plans for the works. A further programme is being developed to address all of the lower priority works required to other blocks.

What you can do to help us keep your home safe

Cigarettes are the highest cause of fires, so please remember that smoking is not allowed in communal areas. If you do smoke, then makes sure that cigarettes are stubbed out and disposed of carefully and you should never smoke in bed.

Corridors and walkways must be kept clear of obstructions, and items stored on private balconies need to be non-flammable. Electrical items must be kept inside your home.

We have a friendly team of people who can offer free, confidential advice to help get your finances in shape and explain Universal Credit.

Local resident Rabia spoke to us about her experience with Universal Credit and the help that was on offer from Tower Hamlets’ Homes welfare reform team.

Rabia lives in Poplar in a THH home, with her daughter aged 11 and son aged nine. She says: “I got help from the Universal Credit team through falling into rent arrears. I can usually pay all my bills on time, but I was finding it hard to manage my money.

“Mohammed in the team was brilliant, and once I had sorted out my rent arrears, he helped me to work out a repayment plan that I could afford. Universal Credit is paid monthly and there’s a six-week waiting time before you get your first payment. This means that you could have bills coming in but no money to pay them which is stressful.

“Mohammed dealt with the whole process for me. He was friendly, stopped me from worrying and was only ever a phone call away. It really makes a difference to get practical help, like a breakdown on what to budget for monthly.

“Not having to worry as much about money means I can get on with the important things in life, like getting my qualification as a sports instructor.”
You’ll need to pay your own rent monthly in advance when you receive your monthly Universal Credit payment. We can help you set up a Direct Debit or Standing Order.

If you don’t have a bank account, we can help you to get one. Remember – you must have a bank account to receive your Universal Credit payments. You can convert your Post Office Cash Card to a Basic Bank Account with the Post Office or open a Basic Bank Account with any high street bank.

To manage your Universal Credit claim and account, you’ll need to use the internet. We can help you get access or training.

With Universal Credit you get all your benefits in one single monthly payment (job seekers allowance, housing benefit, employment support allowance, income support, child tax credit and working tax credit). We can help you to budget.

Community Safety is one of my main priorities as Mayor. A big part of this is tackling anti-social behaviour (ASB) so people feel safe and reassured going about their business.

I think we do get on well in our part of the East End, but in a borough of over 300,000 people, there will always be issues with crime and anti-social behaviour.

I know what impact ASB can have on people’s lives; it is something residents approach me with at my casework advice surgeries. Tackling this issue means working with the police and other partners. We can use resources such as our ASB hotline and our extensive CCTV network to ensure that when problems are reported they are followed up.

As community safety is a priority, I have invested in funding 39 additional police officers to tackle crime and anti-social behaviour. £1.5m has been specifically earmarked to fund 14 of these officers, who will be patrolling Tower Hamlets Homes Estates and who will work in partnership with the THH anti-social behaviour team.

There is always more work to be done, but as a council we are providing reassurance to our residents.
Keeping our residents safe and allowing them to enjoy living in their homes and neighbourhoods is the top priority for THH. Our dedicated ASB team are here to deal with reports of ASB, and will keep residents involved and updated as action is taken and cases progress. We work with police to stop problems and to gather evidence for more serious cases where we need to take legal action.

Thanks to a partnership with the police and ParkGuard Ltd (a private security firm), we now have more ways than ever to stop ASB happening and to deal with those who commit it.

More police on housing estates

From September there are more police on THH housing estates. An extra 14 police officers will focus on tackling crime and ASB, working alongside THH’s ASB team. These extra police officers are funded by Tower Hamlets Council and will tackle issues such as acid attacks, drug dealing and violent crime.

Parkguard

You are likely to have seen officers from Parkguard Ltd walking or driving around our estates. They work in partnership with THH and the police to help prevent and deal with crime and ASB. Providing reassurance and assistance to the local community, they are accredited under the Community Safety Accreditation Scheme (CSAS) by the Metropolitan Police.
Tenants and leaseholders

THH won’t allow the small minority of our tenants and leaseholders who commit ASB to spoil things for everyone else. Legal action will be taken against tenants who break their tenancy conditions and leaseholders or their sub-tenants who break the terms of their lease. In the most serious cases, it could mean THH applying to court for evictions.

Barbers shop closed down

Drugs and weapons off the hairstyle menu

In October the hard work of our ASB team and police saw a barbers shop in Mile End closed down. The people operating from New Style Barbers were creating misery for local residents, fellow business and those visiting the area by operating it as a crime HQ.

Police were called repeatedly to the premises following reports of drug dealing, and drugs were found on the premises, along with weapons, such as knives, machetes and knuckle dusters.

Whilst the shop was open, there was an increase in police reports of noise, intimidating behaviour – and violent crime. Local parents told THH that they were afraid to let their children play in the streets.

Working with the police to collect evidence, the ASB team obtained a closure order for the premises from Stratford Magistrates Court. THH then changed the locks – and secured the shop. It’s a great result for THH, and shows how partnership working can make a huge difference in local areas.

A new show ‘Homes and Communities’ appears on the Betar Bangla radio station. THH is hosting a monthly discussion and phone-in on things that matter to residents. You can catch it from 4-5pm, on the second Thursday of every month.

Hosted by THH communications team member Luksana Choudhury, topics up for discussion have so far included domestic violence and Universal Credit.

Betar Bangla is the first radio station to serve the Bangladeshi community in the UK and broadcasts from its base in Shadwell. They have over 70,000 listeners on 1503 AM, and followers from around the world listening through streaming.

Luksana said: “At first I found it quite daunting thinking that I would have to speak live on air, but once I got used to it I started to enjoy it. I did some training on the radio equipment and how the station works, and now there’s no stopping me. Listen to my show, phone in and suggest any topics that we should cover.”
Boundary Fun Palace alive with activity

For one day in October, Bethnal Green’s Boundary estate was transformed into a ‘Fun Palace’ – a hub of creativity and celebration. For the second year running, Boundary and St Hilda’s east residents joined together to bring arts and science to the community. Activities included drawing, knitting, banner making, local history, hands-on science – even learning songs written by 19th century East End Jewish immigrants with the Great Yiddish Parade Choir and Band.

Fun Palaces is a movement promoting community at the heart of culture, with an annual weekend of arts and science action created by, for and with local people. Next dates are 6 & 7 October 2018. Check out @palace_fun

We asked residents about life on the Boundary, Britain’s first council estate

Holly Bremner

“I’ve lived here for 12 years. Boundary is a community where everyone knows everyone and we all get on.”

Sabreen Ahmed

“I work in the Boundary community launderette. It’s not somewhere just to go to work, it’s like visiting friends, We talk about life. History passes through that launderette.”

Leena Barakah

“I was born here. There are activities for everyone.”
Thrifty ways to spruce up your home for under a tenner

Not got a whole lot of cash going spare, but could really do with getting your house ship-shape? Here are a few ideas on how to do it.

Clear the clutter
Do you really need to keep all those old magazines from the early 2000s? We thought not. When you go through your cupboards you’ll realise how much stuff you have that you just don’t need. Get rid of anything you don’t use and/or need, and your home will suddenly feel much bigger.

Get artistic!
Bored of your old furniture? Paint it! A great place to start is your dining chairs. Pick different colours for each to create an eclectic look that will add a bit of pizzazz to the room.

Throw on some colour
Even if it’s not sunny outside, some splashes of colour will bring warmth into your house. A simple throw in a statement shade, like orange or yellow, spread across plain bedsheets is something you’ll really want to snuggle up in.

Invest in cushions that pop
The same logic applies to cushions – opt for patterns and vibrant colours against minimalist sofas for a fresh look. Better yet, they are a brilliant way to sneakily cover worn couches and stains.
Repurpose
The price of homeware can be eye-watering. A lot of things lying around the house can be recycled. It’s all about using a bit of imagination. Why not use old jam jars as pots for cute plants or storing colourful buttons.

Paint an accent wall
An accent wall in a bright colour is a bold move, and can make a big difference to a room. If you’re nervous about such a big commitment though, why not start small? Paint the side of your chest of drawers a sunny yellow colour and go from there.

Get colour-coding
Bookshelves can easily get out of control. It might be a bit of a pain, but re-organising your shelves will be well worth it. As your house isn’t the local library, why not colour-code your books instead of alphabetising them? Talk about Instagram-ready!
